

Shokahle R. Dlamini is a lecturer and Head of Department at the University of Eswatini (UNESWA), Department of History. Dlamini is a graduate of the University of Johannesburg where she was awarded with the Distinctive Researcher Award in 2016. Her research focus while doing PhD in this university was on medical missions and the evolution and development of nursing Education in Swaziland. That is how she picked her research interest in medical missions, nursing history, health and healing in Swaziland. She has published articles on the Church of the Nazarene medical missions, nursing education, HIV/AIDS and malaria. Her most recent publications include, "Medical Missions and Proselytisation: The Case of the Church of the Nazarene Medical Missions' Proselytisation Activities in Swaziland, 1925-1968", published by the African Historical Review in 2022 and "Gender dynamics in the history of nursing education at Ainsworth Dickson Nurse Training School in Swaziland, 1927-2007" published by the Canadian Journal of African Studies in 2023. . She is currently a member of the Country Coordinating Mechanism (CCM) of the Global Fund, Eswatini where she is serving as an Executive Committee member and a representative of the Academic constituency.